7 Things to Know If You Are Flying Out of PHL This Holiday Season

If you are flying out of Philadelphia International Airport (PHL) during the holidays, here are seven things to keep in mind.

- If you are flying American Airlines, check your terminal as well as departure gate before you arrive at the Airport so you know where to check in and go through TSA screening. American flights depart from Terminals A-West, A-East, B, C and F.
- Once you are through security, all terminals and gates are accessible. It's about a 15-minute walk between F and C Terminal. American operates free shuttles between Terminals C and F and Terminals A and F.
- If you're parking at the Airport, check space availability in each garage at phl.org.
- The free Cell Phone Lot is conveniently located 1 minute from all bag claim areas. Don't wait on the roadways for your party to be picked up. Don't leave the lot until your passenger is at curbside with luggage ready to be picked up.
- If you see something, say something. Tell a police officer or call 3111 from a white courtesy phone. Safety is everyone's business.
- If you have a question about Airport security, contact @AskTSA on Twitter and Facebook, or call 866.289.9673.
- Check out our popular holiday entertainment. Most entertainers perform weekdays at the B/C Food Court stage. Schedules are posted at Information Counters.
