Xfinity On the Fly Debuts at Philadelphia International Airport

PHILADELPHIA – Comcast has selected Philadelphia International Airport (PHL) to pilot a new service for travelers. While waiting for their flights, passengers can visit a new lounge area to download movies and shows through the Comcast Xfinity TV app and also recharge their devices.

Xfinity on the Fly, located across the food court between Terminals B and C, includes X1 television service and comfortable chairs with built-in charging stations. Xfinity representatives are available daily, 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., to offer hands-on support and answer questions by passengers.

Travelers who are not Comcast customers can also charge their devices and learn more about the X1 platform and Xfinity apps. Step-by-Step instructions on how to download content and charging stations are displayed in every terminal throughout the Airport.

“We are pleased to offer to our passengers this amenity that will make their travel more pleasant and enjoyable,” said Airport CEO Chellie Cameron. “We’re honored that Comcast, which is headquartered in Philadelphia, has chosen to pilot this service at its hometown airport.”

Comcast Regional Senior Vice President Jim Samaha said: “The worst part of travelling is missing the comforts of home, but we’re helping travelers take one of the best features of home with them on the go.”

Comcast Cable is one of the nation's largest video, high-speed Internet and phone providers to residential customers under the XFINITY brand and also provides these services to businesses.

Philadelphia International Airport is owned and operated by the City of Philadelphia. The Airport is a self-sustaining entity that operates without the use of local tax dollars. It is one of the largest economic engines in Pennsylvania, generating an estimated $14.4 billion in spending to the regional economy and accounting for more than 141,000 jobs.
